Patient-Centered Medical Homes (PCMHs)

June 2013

Report Overview

- This report provides a snapshot of Patient-Centered Medical Home (PCMH) growth in New York State.
- The report includes three sections:
 1. Changes in the number of PCMH-recognized providers.
 2. Changes in the number of Medicaid enrollees that receive care from PCMH-recognized providers.
 3. The amount spent by New York State Medicaid (through increased capitation or fee-for-service (FFS) PCMH 'add-ons' for qualifying visits) on PCMHs.
- This report is based on the most currently available data in each of the three sections. Section one contains provider information from June 2013. Section two contains enrollee information from March 2013. Section three contains financial data from June 2013.
- This report does not analyze or present programmatic results related to quality or satisfaction.

The National Committee for Quality Assurance's Patient-Centered Medical Home

- The National Committee for Quality Assurance's (NCQA) PCMH is a recognition awarded to providers that meet a set of standards for improving primary care, including increased care coordination and access to care.
- Providers can be recognized as level 1, 2, or 3 (3 is the highest recognition) under the NCQA's 2008 standards, or the NCQA's more stringent, 2011 standards.
- New York State Medicaid reimburses PCMH-recognized providers at a higher rate than non-PCMH recognized providers.

- In June 2013, there were 4,868 providers* in New York State recognized as PCMH providers by the NCQA.
 - 4,198 (86%) of these providers have achieved the highest (level 3) recognition.
- There are 3,945 (81%) providers recognized under the NCQA's 2008 standards and 923 (19%) providers are recognized under the NCQA's more stringent, 2011 standards.
- The number of PCMH-recognized providers has grown modestly in 2013.
- As of March 2013, 43% of Medicaid Managed Care (MMC) members were assigned to a PCMH-recognized Primary Care Provider (PCP).
- From January 2013 to March 2013, over 45,000 fee-for-service (FFS) Medicaid enrollees had a qualifying visit (a visit that resulted in an 'add-on' payment) with a PCMH-recognized provider.
- About $42 million was paid to PCMH-recognized providers by MMC from January 2013 to June 2013.
- About $2.3 million was paid to PCMH-recognized providers via medical home 'add-ons' by Medicaid FFS from January 2013 to June 2013.

*Providers include the following credentials: MD, DO, NP, FNP, ACNP, CRNP, ANP, PNP, and PA.

*New York State Medicaid stopped providing PCMH 'add-ons' to all level 1 PCMH-recognized providers (effective 1/1/2013) and 2008 standard level 2 PCMH-recognized providers (effective 7/1/2013) even though these providers are still recognized by the NCQA.

PCPs include MDs, DOs, and CNPs that have a primary or secondary specialty in family practice, general practice, pediatrics, or internal medicine.

The data in Figure 1a and 1b was derived from the most recently available NCQA recognized provider lists (for this report: June 2013).
